FAMILY DONATION BRINGS ORGAN TO THE CATHEDRAL

Magnificent music can be transformative and communicate to listeners at all levels.

- Daniel Whalen

When it became clear several years ago that Oakland would become home to a great world cathedral, Daniel Whalen and his wife Katharine Conroy Whalen thought again of her mother, Gerry Conroy. The Whalens soon made the decision to contribute to build a custom-made world-class pipe organ. Their gift to the Cathedral of Christ the Light funded the design, manufacture and installation of the Létourneau 92 ranks, four-manual, pedal organ with 5298 pipes.

"We're very interested and hopeful about the health and growth of Oakland," Dan Whalen said recently. "Christ the Light Cathedral Center reminds us of the roots of cathedrals in Catholic history—church, education center, commercial and cultural center and a center of communal life. A great cathedral has an anchoring effect on its community. Katharine and I are very interested in helping the Cathedral Center create a vibrant life of its own as it becomes a place of cultural and spiritual celebration."

The opportunity to help create music was also a prime motivator for the Whalens. Katharine teaches music and their daughter Anna and two sons Matthew and Michael are serious about music. Indeed Matt Whalen is drummer with The Matches, an internationally popular touring rock band.

"In this incredibly diverse region, I'm hopeful music from all cultures can be presented within the cathedral," Whalen said. "And it could be a marvelous teaching tool as well. Can you imagine
